THEM STYLES.

There was an old woman who traveled to town
To purchase herself a nice up-to-date
gown;
She bought one that stopped one inch
south of her knees,
And each time she wore it she thought she would freeze.

FAIRBANKS MEN

In Control of Ninth District Republican Convention At Mt.
Sterling.

Mt. Sterling, Ky., March 1.—The Ninth district Republicans held their meeting here yesterday at the courthouse. The convention was called to order by District Chairman Howard McCartney of Flomingsburg, who was chosen temporary chairman, and A. S.
Johnson of Breathitt county, temporary secretary. Committees were appointed and the convention adjourned.
The meeting was harmonious and the Fairbanks men were in control. R.
H. Wian of this city, and W. D. Cochran of Mayaville, were elected as delegates, with Howard Gudgeon of Bath county, and J. C. Hurts of Breathitt county, as alternates to the Chicago convention. Timothy Fields of Ashland was elected member of the Central Committee, and Crooks McClure of Lawrence county, as district elector.

FIRST DISTRICT

Parent-Teacher Association Holds
Regular Monthly Meeting
Tuesday.

On Tuesday afternoon the First District Parent-Teacher Association held its regular monthly meeting. The president, Mrs. Will Smith, called the meeting to order.

Miss Estella M. Nash and her quarter of four little girls, Alice Kuhn, Violet Finch, Edith Lital and Mary Nichols, furnished some excellent music. It was an enjoyable feature.

The president introduced Rev. H. B.
Wilhoite of the First Baptist church, who spoke upon "The Conservation of Youth." The talk was full of interest and it should have had a larger hearing. He said that the idea that man was a triangular being is wrong, that man is a four-square, quoting from St.
Luke 2:52: "He grew in stature, physically; wisdom, mentally; in favor toward God, spiritual; and man, social. Christ taught that the foursquare was the ideal, physical, mental, spiritual and social."

He insisted upon a healthy physical body, for a good mind. The soul is the spiritual relation to God.
God always has the spiritual first and then the social. So rear and train the child that the four sides shall be properly and fully developed.

The hope of the future is the conservancy of the youth today. This is an age of delegation. We no longer chop wood, we have delegated it to the coal company; the handling of coal makes our hands black. We have delegated that to the gas companies. The father, while the delegating is going on, compliments the mother by delegating the rearing of the child, the buying of the clothing and the education and spiritual training to the mother, and the mother in turn delegates part of the burden to the teacher.

He spoke of environment, obedience, work, truancy, sanitation and play in their relation to his subject. Does it pay? Is it better to farm than to reform? The mother has the biggest task ever committed to her race, to conserve the child given to her to rear.
The association is doing a fine work.

DEATH OF STEPHEN WINSLOW PARKER AT LEWISBURG.

Mr. Stephen Winslow Parker died at his home at Lewisburg, Tuesday at 3 o'clock. Born February 20, 1825, he was in his ninety-first year. Death was due to the infirmities of age.

Mr. Parker passed his life on the farm and was interested in the world movements up to the time of his death.
He is survived by one brother, Mr.
William Parker, aged 96. The funeral services will be held Thursday morning at 10:30 in the Lewisburg Baptist church with services by Rev. C. S.
Ellis. Interment in the Lewisburg
Baptist cemetery.

WALTZ-HARRISON.

Mr. David H. Harrison surprised his friends Tuesday afternoon when he announced he was going to Forestville, O., to claim his bride. Mr. Harrison and Miss Ida Waltz of that city, were married in Lexington Wednesday at high noon. They will leave after the ceremony for a bridal trip of a week or ten days after which they will return to this city and make their home.
Mr. Harrison is the junior member of the firm of R. M. Harrison & Son, dealers in grain. The bride is a charming young lady and is well known in this city. The Ledger congratulates the happy young couple.

GOOD ROADS COMMITTEE.

The Good Roads Committee of the Chamber of Commerce held a very interesting meeting at the Council Chamber Tuesday night. A committee consisting of A. C. Cooney, E. T.
Kirk, W. W. McIlvain, Thomas Ewan
and Holton Key was appointed to look over the situation and the feasibility of a bond issue. They are also instructed to meet with the Fiscal Court.
There seems to be a feeling that a commission of five men to be selected from different parts of the county to act in conjunction with the Fiscal Court would facilitate good roads.

MARRIAGE LICENSE FIGURES.

During the month of February the County Clerk issued twenty-seven marriage licenses. Three of the husbands were 18 and one 16, while the wives, seven were under 18 years of age.

CONVERS-ADKINS.

Mr. James Adkins and Miss Anna
Conners of the Moransburg neighborhood, were married at St. Patrick's church at 7 o'clock.

SOCIETY BUDS

Admonished by Miss Lois Janvier To Look For Something
Real To Do.

New Orleans, March 1.—Miss Lois
Janvier, whose father is Charles Janvier, this town's new postmaster and a banker of renown all over the south, is social secretary for a fashionable department store.

Admirers spent $10,000 on her for clothes and entertainment when she was queen of the carnival in 1912.
This $10,000 queen addressed a meeting of Y. W. C. A. girls the other day and said:

"After a girl has had her year in society she should look about for something real to do. If a debutante dies she is not missed, because she was of no use to anybody, but if one of the girls in the store were to die there'd be ten or more persons asking for her in one day."

Miss Janvier's admonition to debutantes evidently has been taken seriously, for already half a dozen "buds"
are turning to things other than teas, lango parties and automobiles.

Miss Bettie Wilkinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Wilkinson, niece of a former United States Senator, is taking cooking lessons three days a week in high school.

Miss Elizabeth Lyman, queen of the Mittens' ball of 1916, declares she agrees with Miss Janvier.

The Miss Janvier referred to in the above article is a sister to Mr. John Janvier, former editor of The Ledger.
The Janvier family has been prominent in social circles in the south for many years.

MASON COUNTY WOMAN'S CLUB MEETS THURSDAY.

The regular meeting of the Mason County Woman's Club will be held on Thursday at 2:30 o'clock at the Council Chamber. Mrs. Peddicord will address the club on "Social Service."
Mrs. Peddicord comes with a large experience of a trained worker in social service and is a charming speaker.
Members of the Mission Board, Settlement Club and Health League are expecially invited.

The Woman's Club, seconded and assisted by the Chamber of Commerce, has invited the State Federation of Women's Clubs to hold its annual meeting in Maysville on May 17, 18 and 19, and the Federation has accepted the invitation.

Through the courtesy of the Chamber of Commerce Mr. George W.
Knight of Chattanooga, Tenn., of the firm of Knight & Quayle, will address
the meeting on "Garbage Disposal."

Beginning on Saturday, March 4, the Mason County Woman's Club will observe Baby Week and on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock there will be a

$2.50 in gold the second prize. Let all Babies under one year of age be present.

NEVER FRIES DARK

In preparing bacon for your breakfast, it should be noticed that
"PARTRIDGE" Bacon, even though done to a turn, will retain its rich, golden color. This is one of the distinctions of "PARTRIDGE" Bacon, in that its very appearance on your breakfast table, crisp, tender, golden brown and piping hot, will arouse and stimulate the most sluggish appetite. So perfect is the cure of the "PARTRIDGE" Bacon, that it can never fry dark. Order a pound today.

THE HOME OF QUALITY CLOTHES

If there ever was a time for serious contemplation about clothes needs—that moment has arrived. If, next winter, you are asked to pay advances on clothes that will strike you as steep, don't blame any retailer. Woolens have soared to unprecedented heights; you know something about the wool situation yourself, by the way it is selling here; dyestuffs are alarmingly scarce; trimmings have gone 'way up;
even labor is better paid than ever before.

and Michaels, Stern & Co. clothes and other clothes at greatly reduced prices.

can linens be secured at present prices. Monday will see prices the rising linen market demands, placed on every item in our stock. The linen situation grows more tense every month the European war continues. With linens it is no longer a question of getting what you want but taking what you can get. We not only don't know when we can replenish our stock at present prices but we don't know when some items can be procured at any price.
We are playing fair and giving due warning. After this week prices advance.

JUSTICE TO THE NATIONAL GUARD.

Congress is definitely committed to the policy of preparedness against war, preparedness for a continuation of American peace and prosperity. That much is settled beyond a doubt.

The continental army scheme is dead. Peace to its ashes!

With regard to the land forces, there remains now but to increase the size of the regular army to reasonable proportions and to augment and develop the National Guard of the several states. They will constitute the "citizenry trained to arms" for which the President is contending.

Justice at last will be done to the National Guard, and in its new development it will constitute an army upon which the nation may safely depend in time of distress. It has never failed yet to respond to the call of our country, and it never will.

From a reliable and trustworthy source, from one actively concerned in the framing and shaping of this legislation, the editor of this paper learns that the new plan will call for increasing the National Guard to approximately 500,000 men, apportioned among the states according to population.

These troops will be armed and equipped in precisely the same manner as the regular army, will be subject to the same regulations and discipline, and will be educated in their duties under the tutelage of experienced officers of the army.

A pay bill on a graduated scale will be passed by Congress which will give private soldiers approximately $18 each year for attending drills, with pay for officers in proportion to their grade.

In times of peace the guard will remain under the control of the Governors of the several states, but in time of war or in the event of a national need the President will have authority to order out the troops of any state for service without the formality of calling for volunteers.

The development of the National Guard is probably the most practical an effective, and yet the least expensive, method that could be devised for supplying an army of adequate size and efficiency for defensive purposes, and the federalizing of the state troops will practically eliminate any hostility that may have been entertained toward them in certain quarters heretofore.

The National Guard of this state is made up of young men of a high order of intelligence, whose patriotism has been tried and found true and if the time ever comes when the nation needs their services the President may rest assured that the patriotism of Kentucky will be second to none.

There is but one flag and that flag is our flag!

THE VALUE OF PREPAREDNESS.

Preparedness is in the air and everybody is talking about it—preparedness against war.

But there is another brand of preparedness that is of vital importance to the American people, and that is preparedness for prosperity.

There is probably no class of people in this country who should be more alive to the possibilities of commercial preparedness than the farmer. Upon him will devolve the vast amount of supplies demanded by the world when this war ends. It will be the burden of feeding the millions of mouths that will be hungering for the products of the farm. And his will be the pockets that will sag with the weight of the gold that pays for these supplies.

If there is an acre of tillable ground in this section that has not been contracted for it should be promptly put under cultivation. It should be made to yield its quota of the wealth that will be waiting for some one to pick up.

Congress at last is aroused and will take care of preparedness against war, but the American farmer is the man who must prepare for the prosperity of peace.

Preparedness is in the air, brother. Go to it—and get it!

The motorists are not expecting to run less speedy cars to offset the high price of gasoline, as of course their wives will be glad to get along without new dresses.

If Justice Hughes don't shave those whiskers, people will be calling him the Caranza of the United States.

THE TAKING OF STINGAREE.

STINGAREE had crossed the Murray, and all Victoria was agog with the news. It was not his first descent upon that colony nor likely to be his last, unless Subinspector Kilbride and his mounted myrmidons did much better than they had done before. There is no stimulus, however, like a trembling reputation. Within four-and-twenty hours Kilbride himself was on the track of the invader, whose heels he had never seen, much less his face. And he rode alone.

Once, glancing through the woods, he saw several horsemen who had dismounted and were reading the latest exploits of the noted outlaw. He made a detour and escaped notice.

It was not merely his reputation that was at stake, though nothing could restore that more effectively than the single handed capture of so notorious a desperado as Stingaree. The dash of the officer was not unreasonably actuated by the sum of $500 now set upon the outlaw's person, alive or dead. That would be a little windfall for one man, but not much to divide among five or six. On the other hand, and with all his faults, Subinspector Kilbride had courage enough to furnish forth a squadron. He was a black haired, high cheeked Irish-Australian, keen and overbearing to a degree, restless, irascible, but full of the fire and dash that make a dangerous enemy as another good fighter need desire. And as a fine fighter in an infamous cause Stingaree had his admirers even in Victoria, where the old tale of popular sympathy with a picturesque rascal was responsible for not the least of the subinspector's difficulties. But even this struck Kilbride as yet another of those obstacles which were more easily surmounted alone than at the head of a tentative squad, and with that conviction he pushed his thoroughbred on and on through a whole cold night and three parts of an Australian summer's day. Imagine, then, his disgust at the apparition of a mounted trooper galloping to meet him in the middle of the afternoon and within a few miles of a former hiding place of the bush-ranger, where the senior officer had strong hopes of finding and surprising him now.

He Saw Horsemen, Dismounted, Reading the Latest Exploits of the Noted Outlaw.

"Where the devil do you come from?" cried Kilbride as the other rode up.

"Jumping Creek," was the crisp reply. "Stationed there."

"Then why don't you stop there and do your duty?"

"Stingaree," said the laconic trooper. "What! Do you think you're after him too?"

"I am after him."

"So am I."

"Then you're going in the wrong direction."

Kilbride flushed a warm brown from beard to helmet.

"Do you know who you're speaking to?" cried he. "I'm Subinspector Kilbride, and this business is my business and no other man's in this colony. You go back to your barracks, sir! I'm not going to have every fool in the force charging about the country on his own account."

"Very well, sir, if you wish it. But I can assure you that you are off the track of Stingaree."

"How do you know?" asked Kilbride rudely, but he was beginning to look less black.

"I happen to know the place. You would have some difficulty in finding it if you never were there before. I only stumbled across it by accident myself."

"Late?"

"One day last winter when I was out looking for some horses."

"And you kept it to yourself?"

The trooper hung his head. "I knew we should have him across the river again," he said. "It was only a question of time—and, well, sir, you can understand."

"You were seen on taking him your

"As keen as you are, Mr. Kilbride," owned the younger man, raising bold eyes and looking his superior fairly and squarely in the face.

Kilbride returned the stare, and what he saw unsettled him. The other was wiry, trim, eminently alert; he had the masterful mouth and the dare-devil eye, and his horse seemed a part of himself. A more promising comrade at hot work was not to be desired, and the work would be hot if Stingaree had half a chance. After all, it was better for two to succeed than for one to fail. "Half the money and a whole skin!" said Kilbride to himself and rapped out his decision with an oath.

The trooper's eyes lit with reckless mirth, and a soft cheer came from under his breath.

"By the bye, what's your name," said Kilbride, "before we start?"

"Bowen—Jack Bowen."

"Then I know all about you. Why on earth didn't you tell me before? It was you who took that black fellow who murdered the shepherd on Woolshed creek, wasn't it?"

The admission was made with due modesty.

"Why, you're the very man for me!" Kilbride cried. "You show the way, Jack, and I'll make the going."

And off they went together at a canter, the skulking sun striking fire from their buttons and accoutrements and lighting their sunburned faces as it lit the red stems and the white that raced past them on either side. For a little they followed the path which Kilbride had taken on his way thither; then the trooper plunged into the thick bush on the left, and the game became follow my leader, in and out, and in, through a maze of red stems and of white, where the pungent eucalyptus scent hung as heavy as the sage green, perpendicular leaves themselves, and so onward until the subinspector called a halt.

"How far is it now, Bowen?"

"Two or three miles, sir."

"Good! It'll be light for another hour and a half. We'd better give the makes a breather while we can. And there'd be no harm in two days."

"I was just thinking the same thing, sir."

So their reins dangled while they cut up a pipeline of apparent shoe leather apiece, and presently the dull blue smoke was curling and circling against the dull green foliage, producing subtle half that harmonies and momentary arabesques as the horses nibbled neck and neck.

"Native of this colony?" puffed Kilbride.

"Well, no—old country originally, but I've been out some years."

"That's all right so long as you're not a New South Welshman," said Kilbride, with a chuckle. "I'll be shot if I wouldn't almost have turned you back if you had been!"

"Victoria is to have all the credit, is she, sir?"

"Anyhow, they shan't have any on the other side, or I'll know the reason!" the Victorian swore. "I—by Jove, I'd as lief lose my man again as let them have a hand in taking him!"

"But why?"

"Why? Do you live so near the border and can you ask? Did you never hear about a Sydney aide driver blowing about his blooming colony? Haven't you heard of Sydney harbor till you're sick? And then their papers!" cried Kilbride, with columns in his tone.

"But I'll have the last laugh yet! I swore I would, and I will! I swore I'd take Stingaree!"

"So I heard."

"Yes, they put it in their infernal papers! But it was true—take him I will!"

"Or die in the attempt, eh?"

"Yes."

All the bitterness of previous failure—indeed, of notorious and much criticised defeat—was in the subinspector's tone. That of his subordinate, though light as air, had a touch of insolence which an outsider could not have failed to detect, but Kilbride was too excited to do so. The outsider might possibly have foreseen a rivalry which no longer entered Kilbride's hot head.

Meanwhile the country was changing even with their now leisurely advance. The timbered flats in the region of the river had merged into a gully, which was rapidly developing into a gorge, with new luxuriant growths which added greatly to the density of the forest, suggesting its beauty. The almost neutral eucalyptus that was splashed with the gay hues of many parrots, as though the gum trees had hastened to flower. The noise of rushing water stole gradually through the murmur of leaves. And suddenly an object in the grass struck the sight like a lantern flashed at dead of night. It proved to be an empty saddle the pricked by a stray lance from the slanting sun.

"We must be near," whispered Kilbride.

"Are there? You hear the creek? He has a gunyah there; that's all. Shall we rush in on horseback or creep up on foot?"

"You know the lie of the land, Bowen. Which do you recommend?"

"Rushing it."

"Then here goes."

In a few seconds they had leaped their horses into a flay clearing on the banks of a creek as relatively white. And the gunyah—a mere funnel of boughs and leaves, in which a man could lie at full length, but only sit upright at the funnel's mouth—seemed as empty as the space on every hand. The only other sign of Stingaree was a hawk of rope flung carelessly across the gunyah roof.

"He may be watching us from among the trees," muttered Kilbride, looking sharply about him. Bowen screwed up his eyes and followed suit.

"I hardly think it, Mr. Kilbride."

"But it's possible, and here we sit for him to pot us! Let's dismount, whether or no."

"They said to the ground. The trooper found himself at the mouth of the gunyah."

"What if he were in there after all?"

"He isn't," said Kilbride, stepping in front and stooping quickly. "But you might creep in, Jack, and see if he's left any sign of life behind him."

The men were standing between the boughs, their revolvers cocked. How-his answer was to hand his weapon over to Kilbride and to creep into the gunyah on his hands and knees.

"Here's something or other," his voice cried thickly from within. "It's half buried. Wait a bit."

"As sharp as you can!"

"All right. But it's a box and jolly heavy."

Kilbride peered nervously to right, left and center; then his eyes fell upon his companion wriggling back into the open, a shallow, oblong box in his arms, its polish dimmed and dusted with the mold, as though they had violated a grave.

"Kick it open!" exclaimed Kilbride excitedly.

But there was no need for that. The box was not even locked, and the lifted lid revealed an inner one of glass, protecting a brass cylinder with steel bristles in uneven growth and a long line of lilliputian hammers.

"A musical box!" said the staggered subinspector.

"That's it, sir. I remember hearing that he'd collared one in one of the stations he stuck up last time he was down here. It must have lain in the ground ever since. And it only shows how hard you must have pressed him, Mr. Kilbride."

"Yes. I headed him back across the Murray—I soon had him out of this!" rejoined the other in grim bravado. "Anything else in the gunyah?"

"All he took that trip, I fancy, if we dig a bit. You never gave him time to roll his saws?"

"I must have a look," said Kilbride, his excitement fed by his reviving vanity.

The other questioned whether it were worth while. This settled the subinspector.

"There may be something to show where he's gone," that casuist suggested, "for I don't believe he's anywhere here."

"Shall I hold the shooters, sir?"

"Thanks. And keep your eyes open, just in case. But it's my opinion that the bird's down somewhere else, and it's for us to find out where."

30,000 SOLDIERS MAINED IN WAR
PLED FOR WORK.

New York.—Thirty thousand maimed French soldiers are pleading for work, for the opportunity to be educated to make themselves useful in the labor world of their country. It is announced by Mrs. Edmund Lincoln Baylies, chairman for the United States of a movement which has just been inaugurated for the organization of the American Committee for Training Maimed Soldiers of France. For these 30,000 crippled men, according to Mrs. Baylies, an equal number of positions are being held open by the employers of France, who need these workers. Only the training for these soldiers is lacking to enable them to learn some useful pursuit so that they can serve in shop and factory.

The American Committee, which has established headquarters at the Plaza Hotel in this city, regards its task in the light of "charity to do away with the need of charity." It requires from three to six months for one of these war dependents to pass through this period of instruction—the length of time necessary for his tuition depends on the man and his trade—and the cost of his education is only four to five francs a day. One hundred dollars would meet the average of all cases, the committee estimates.

The committee in France knew of one soldier who, having lost an arm while fighting on the Marne, drifted from shop to shop in search of a chance to support himself, and, turned away because he knew no trade which he could follow with his one arm, shot himself.

The maimed ones who are being taught trades under the direction of the committee in France divide their profits in full when they have reached the stage of production with those pupils who are only beginning to learn.

SPRAYING PAID IN MISSOURI

On One Orchard Net Profit Was Found to Be $161.12 Per Acre—Insects Are High Livers.

Insects are high livers. On an acre of apple trees they may destroy a hundred dollars' worth of fruit. The average value of the fruit of an acre of unsprayed apple trees in the state of Missouri has been found to be $18.05. Four careful sprayings made this value jump to an average of $187.19 an acre. On one orchard in 1913 the net profit due to spraying was found to be $161.12 an acre. The average cost per tree for the first spraying was 6.6 cents, 13 cents for the second, 9.5 cents for the third, and 8 cents for the fourth—a total of 37.1 cents a tree, or an average of $22.26 an acre.—American Farming.

Way to Pack Fruit.

Fruit of every kind should be packed in boxes or baskets, stamped with the name of the grower, and if he will select a name for his product as a sort of trademark in addition to his own name, he will have, in time, a valuable asset, provided he lives up to it in every way.

With the closing sale last week the Maysville loose leaf market had sold 15,636,025 pounds of tobacco this season at an average of $11.25 per hundred.

One hundred and five veterans, members of the Haydon (O.) Soldiers' Home, have died since January 1 of this year.

Why is the navy still complaining about the lack of shells, when there is so much peanut politics at Washington?

SHOW DOWN

Called For by President Wilson On the Pending Proposals To Keep Americans Off Merchant Ships

Washington, March 1.—President Wilson decided yesterday that he can not proceed with the German submarine negotiations while discussion in Congress weakens his position before the world so he called for a show down on the pending proposals to warn Americans off merchant ships of the European belligerents armed for defensive purposes. President Wilson wrote a letter to Representative Poin, chairman of the House Rules Committee, asking him to provide parliamentary means for bringing the agitation out into the open on the floor of the House for full discussion and a vote. Later, he summoned Senator Stone and Representative Flood, chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, and Senator Kern, majority leader in the Senate, for a conference at the White House this morning at which he will request that one of the various pending resolutions be acted upon in both Houses.

Administration leaders, working steadily for the last week strengthening their lines and counting on the support of the Republicans now are so sure of their position that they plan to end all agitation with a vote of confidence in the President.

MYSTERIOUS SHOT IN DARKNESS SPELLS DEATH TO RAILROADER AT RUSSELL.

In the midst of a desperate struggle in the dining room at the home of Samuel Simpson, at Russell, on Monday midnight, Miss Esther Simpson, 22 years old, leaped to a table and fired the contents of an automatic pistol into the body of Clifford D. Grooms, her brother-in-law, and a well known railroad man.

Grooms, from whom a large revolver had been taken, staggered from his father-in-law's home, but as he crossed the sidewalk in front, another bullet fired from the Simpson home went through his back and he fell mortally wounded. The railroad died at Keller's Hospital in front shortly after noon Tuesday. Miss Esther Simpson is under $500 bond, charged with his murder, and it is stated by the Russell authorities that the arrest of Samuel Simpson, Jr., her brother, who is said to have fired the last shot at Simpson, is a probability.

Mr. and Mrs. Riley Galtner of Commerce street, left Wednesday morning for Lexington where they will be present at the marriage of Mrs. Galtner's brother, Mr. David Hechinger Harrison, to Miss Ida Holz of Cincinnati. The ceremony will be performed at the home of the officiating minister.

If Christian county jurors shirk their duty, Judge J. T. Hansberry told grand jurors he would take the jurors to other counties and secure convictions.

The C. & O. railroad is the second heaviest taxpayer in the state of West Virginia, paying $429,693.43. This does not include damage suit settlements.

Newton Jones, the 70-year-old court-receiver who was arrested near Portsmouth four weeks ago, died in Cincinnati at the jail hospital.

Leslie Keene, Isaac Kuriz and Charles and James Kelly of Germantown, were on the local tobacco breaks Tuesday.

C. Calvert Early, John Marshall, Thelma Owens and T. M. Castigan of the county, were transacting business here Tuesday.

Walter Shepherd of Mt. Olive, L. T. Graham of Pleasantburg, Henry Berker of Ripley, were in this city Tuesday on business.

The evangelistic services at the Aberdeen Baptist church will close tonight. A large crowd from Maysville will attend.

REPRESENTATIVE

H. P. PURNELL

Gives His Reasons For Voting For Substitute To the Greene House Bill 158—Stands For Closing Saloons on Sunday.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 28, 1916.

Editor Public Ledger, Maysville, Ky.
Dear Sir—In order that the people of Maysville and Mason county might be informed concerning the action of the Legislature with regard to the passage of the Greene bill and the closing of saloons on Sunday, I feel it my duty to give them as far as I can, the facts in the case and why I believe those laws should have been passed.

At the beginning of the session Mr. Greene offered Bills No. 5 and 6 for the purpose of closing the saloons on Sunday, not only in Newport and Covington, but in the whole state. After these bills were passed in the House, Mr. Greene, feeling they would not meet the demands of the people where saloons were being operated, offered House Bill No. 158, making it a forfeiture of licenses where a saloon is operated on Sunday. After this bill was offered, the administration seeking to close these saloons, felt that the bills introduced by Mr. Greene would not close these places, so the Attorney General advised with the Governor with regard to the drawing of a bill which would without a doubt, close all the saloons in the state on Sunday. This bill as offered by the administration, was to be substituted for the Greene Bill 158, as the only means by which the people in the places where saloons were being operated could get relief. On the question of substituting, quite a contention arose, as Mr. Greene took the position that his bill would bring the necessary relief and that the substitute would not, but when a vote was taken by the House the substitute carried, as all the members were assured that if the substitute was passed the Governor and the Attorney General would without a doubt close these places on Sunday.

In my opinion this was a question where the rights of the people were at stake, and those rights should be protected. If the state was without a law that would protect the "God fearing people" of this commonwealth, then it was due time that the Legislature was passing one that would allow the people to go to church on Sunday without being harassed, as was shown some were in Covington and Newport. The open saloon on Sunday is not only, in my opinion, a menace to society, but a disgrace to the state of Kentucky, and for that reason as Representative from Mason county I voted for the Bills 5 and 6 as a means to eliminate from the affairs of this state the lawlessness that has been carried on in some of the cities where saloons were being operated on Sunday. As to the Bill No. 158 and the substitute that was offered, it was a question in my mind which was the stronger of the two, as I believed the one meeting the demands of the people in abolishing this Sunday evil should be passed, so I called on the Attorney General in person, and discussed the substitute fully, when he informed me that under Bill 158 the saloons could not be closed, but that the substitute would close them beyond a doubt. He also went so far as to say that he and the Governor would answer to the people if the saloons were not closed, and that he would guarantee me and also the House that if they would pass the substitute that we would have no more open saloons on Sunday in the state of Kentucky; so believing that the Governor and Attorney General would fulfill their promises and protect the good people of our state, I supported this substitute, feeling that it was only right to rid this state of this Sunday opening, which in my opinion is an outrage and a slap in the face of justice and order, and something which the God fearing people are entitled to.

Hoping that I have made myself clear to the people of Mason county, and that this Sunday evil will be abolished, I am, respectfully yours,
H. P. PURNELL.
